Appropriate to this end of the year Holiday season, Mrs. Anson Howe Smith of Dedham, Massachusetts, will illustrate in a slide lecture "THE CHANGING FASHIONS IN TABLE DECORATION", at The Cleveland Museum of Art, December 10 at 3:30 p.m.

Old cookbooks, early books on etiquette, letters, memoirs and ceramics, silverware and other decorative arts for the table of various periods will give an idea of festive decorations formerly in vogue and how they can be adapted to today's occasions.

Mrs. Smith, a graduate of Boston's School of Fine Arts, has contributed articles to House Beautiful and other national publications, has lectured widely and is very active in the field of flower arrangement. She translated Ferrari's seventeenth-century text on Flora.
